

Dear sirs; I am an over the road truck driver and use my XM Radio as a valuable tool driving. Not only do I get my entertainment from all their music and talk radio programs but my XM isVery valuable in planning my route listening to what the road and weather is ahead of me. Local broadcast radio is nice when you are within their broadcast coverage area, but for me I need to know when I'm hundreds of miles from the cities what road conditions are and any weather problems for this information for which I'm very grateful for my XM Radio.I ask the FCC to take my comments into considereation and NOT tamper with XM Radio and not restrict this VERY informational service.

Sincerely,
Nick Sidener
